MyFairbanks.com Presents the Cold Climate Film Festival

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Fairbanks, AK – MyFairbanks.com premieres the Cold Climate Film Festival in the theatre at Peaceful Alaska Getaway on Feb 28, 2018 - featuring films produced in or about the cold.

D. Heskin and Susan Osborne are proud to bring the Cold Climate Film Festival to Fairbanks, AK (near Chena Pump Road, just five minutes from the airport) for the smallest and one of the most Northerly Film Festivals in the world - featuring the Northern Lights that evening if the weather cooperates.

Cold Climate Film Festival is accepting films/trailers/shorts from all over the world up until Feb 23, 2018. Send links to your submissions to: submissions@myfairbanks.com. The theatre is 3D compatible so you can submit 3D movies, as well.

Seating is extremely limited. There are 12 seats currently available. Cost to attend the evening showing is $50 per couple - tickets include beverages and snacks and comfortable viewing of the wintry productions from a warm theatre.

If you are handicapped or need a ride, let us know in advance. Volunteers are also encouraged to help out, contact: volunteer@myfairbanks.com.

“It was one of those bitter mornings when the whole of nature is shiny, brittle, and hard, like crystal. The trees, decked out in frost, seem to have sweated ice; the earth resounds beneath one's feet; the tiniest sounds carry a long way in the dry air; the blue sky is bright as a mirror, and the sun moves through space in icy brilliance, casting on the frozen world rays which bestow no warmth upon anything.”

— Guy de Maupassant, Bel-Ami
